“White Mountain Photography”

Presented by: John Anderson

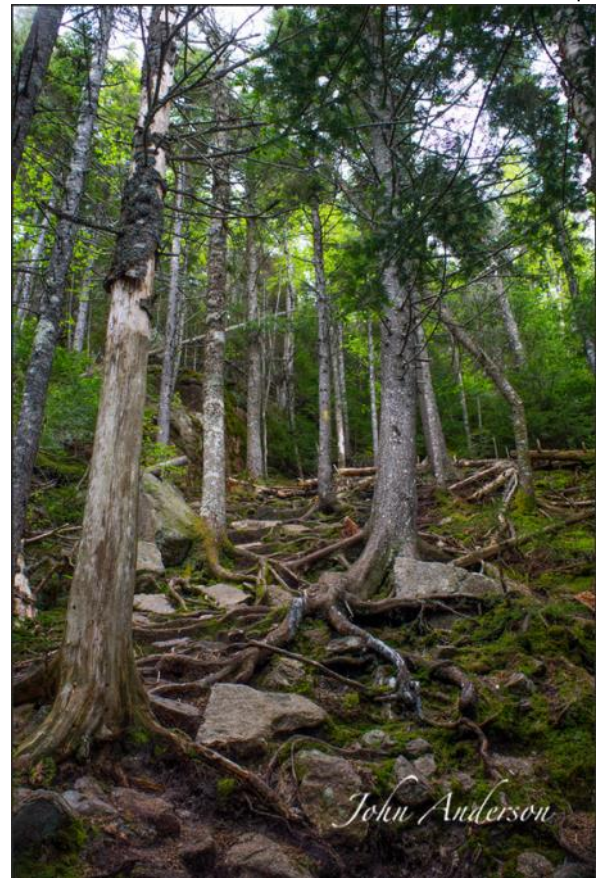

This is a unique opportunity to come hear a local expert talk about his craft and expertise with a camera. John will talk about the history of photography in the white mountains and talking about his work as “artist in residence” for the White Mountain National Forest. John's work is in collections, both public and private around the country. He is a member of the League of New Hampshire Craftsmen, and shows his work throughout the state. In addition to being a master of his craft, he is also an outstanding member of the community helping out at the local elementary school, is the coordinator of the photography department at Plymouth State University, is on the states roster of Artist in Education.

BFA, Rhode Island School of Design

John Anderson has been teaching photography within the University System of New Hampshire for over 12 years, and here at Plymouth State since 2004. John is on the New Hampshire roster for Arts in Education and has been an artist educator for as long as he has been an artist. John has shown his work nationally, and his works are in private and public collections across the state and the nation.

The presentation will be at the Old Town Hall in Campton, which is handicap accessible, and open to the public. Refreshments will be served.
